PREFACE

It is difficult to sum up many years of work in a preface. As a part-time hobby, we have each spent over seven years researching the Bartram family. Three years ago we combined forces and shared our research. The logical course dictated that we bring our efforts into print. The part-time hobby thus became what seemed to be a full-time career.

Perhaps the most rewarding culmination of genealogical research is to have it in print where many can share its revelations. However, it is what we were not able to accomplish that bears heavy on the mind as we send our work off to the publisher. To wait until all branches of the family had been fully researched would mean that this work would never go into print. The many pages that follow are the sum total of our knowledge of the Bartram family. The only statement we can make about our knowledge, with any certainty, is that it doubtlessly contains errors. Many documents may have contained erroneous dates or facts. Other errors will probably result from faded memories, worn tombstones or mistakes in previous research on the family. It is also likely that we ourselves added errors in our interpretation of the facts and in recopying during the publication process.

A book of this scope could not have been produced by just two individuals. As a book about a family, it is also documentation of family unity. Countless other Bartrams contributed to these pages with family groups, photographs, and remembrances. Researchers of allied families were just as helpful. Arthur James Wriston was one of the pioneers in the research of Bartram family history. Starting in the 1930's he uncovered many public documents and oral histories that greatly contributed to this publication. His research was thorough and his generosity was wholehearted. There are many other people we would like to thank for their diligent assistance and encouragement, for without whom this book would not have been possible. Especially noted are: Queen D. Franklin, John L. Bartram, Carnas B. Branham, Armina Bartram, Liz Lynch, Paul R. Bartram, W. Holt Bartram, Golden and Mae Bartram, Jean B. Sword, Eva and Woodrow Crabtree, H. R. "Roundy" Bartram, Roma Smith, Kenneth Hampton, Chester Enoch Bartram, Marie B. Hobbs, Richard Wellman, Pharo Osborn, Glen Bartram, Rev. John Young, Helen F. Journey,

BARTRAM BRANCHES

Ruth Waterman, Evelyn Massie, Carlton Hargreaves, and the staffs of the West Virginia and Kentucky Archives and the Wayne County Courthouse. Also many thanks to Elizabeth "Toots" Bartram for her hospitality in providing a base from which to do research and for acting as a surrogate researcher in times of need, Junior and Sue Bartram for hosting the annual Bartram reunion and unrelated Colleen Mahon for proofreading the personal history essays and labeling the maps. A very special thanks to Byron T. Morris, whose column provided us with a constant source of Bartramia. His support and encouragement is sincerely appreciated. Heartfelt gratitude goes to Jim Bartram for his steadfast support, understanding and patience during this long and time-consuming project. There are also a multitude of others who assisted and contributed freely and to whom we are eternally grateful.

It is hoped that this book can be used by members of the numerous Bartram families as a research tool and handy reference. An attempt has been made to tie the various branches of the Bartram family together, whenever proven. Perhaps one day a complete genealogy may be researched and written uniting the many, seemingly unrelated, families to one Norman ancestor. This is not such a work. What we have prepared is a manuscript in which all known Bartram branches, limbs and twigs (and deadwood, when known) are included.

GENEALOGY

KEY TO FORMAT OF GENEALOGY SECTION

All known descendants of Stephen Bartram are included. Each generation is listed separately in order to group all members of a family together. Each individual descendant has been assigned an identification number which remains the same throughout the book. As an example, refer to John P. Bartram on the facing page. As a son of Stephen, he is assigned the identification number 2. When he becomes the head of a family in the second generation (on the same page) his identification number 2 precedes his name in parenthesis. The same number identifies him in the personal history section.

Adopted children are included but are indicated as such where known.
